Forecast For The United Kingdom
Issued by Met Office Exeter
at 1600 on Thursday 28 Jan 2021

++ Valid for broadcast between 1800 and 0600

Headline:
Some snow in Scotland, milder further south with occasional rain.

This Evening and Tonight:
Bands of rain and showers, some heavy, will move east across central and southern areas, becoming slow moving across Scotland where some heavy snow is expected over the hills. Windy with coastal gales in the south-west.

Friday:
Rather cloudy with outbreaks of rain and some hill snow across northern areas moving south and turning more showery. Sunny intervals and scattered showers in south. Cold in far north.

Outlook for Saturday to Monday:
Rain in the south with snow across Wales and the Midlands. Brighter to the north with wintry showers. Cold, with overnight frosts for many. Windy in the south at times.

(C) Crown Copyright 2021. Published by the Met Office.